Board of Education : Elected or Appointed?

Public Question Sent Folks Researching in the Farish Records

Documents in the James Farish files in the museum collection contain many fascinating stories. Farish was appointed as the clerk for both the borough council and the school board when the town withdrew from Egg Harbor Township in 1889. His tenure in the position ran from 1889 to 1932.

ballots along with the official report of the results are real treasures. Candidates for re-election were Edmond Somers, Wesley A. Smith and Daniel Sutton. A write-in vote for William Lear unseated Daniel Sutton. Lear, a well-known local builder, is remembered for the construction of Belhaven School in 1908 and Mechanics Hall, later the Legion Hall, in 1906. The surprise was described in the Pleasantville Press of March 19, 1910. "A dark horse was in the stalls and succeeded in winning the race from Daniel Sutton by eight votes." A rather caustic comment included in the article is worth another chuckle. "A board of education that can afford to use embossed stationary and has two old schoolhouses to sell is decidedly in a class by itself." One of them was sold to the borough for $1.00. Another comment needs to be explained. "The new school building on Belhaven Avenue is presided over by Edward Hazleton and two assistants." For the first few years from the opening in 1908 only three classrooms were used. The two unnamed assistants were teachers Martilla Ketchum for primary grades and Thomas Butler for the intermediate grades. Hazleton taught the upper grades.

The tally sheet for the 1910 Board election shown here tells a bit more about how things were done then. Elections were held at the school. New Jersey census records for Linwood in 1905 listed the count for males of voting age as 234. In 1915 the count was 296. There were only 35 voters for the board election of 1910. Sound familiar?

Results of the resolutions for deciding what to do with the old school buildings were clear. The decision to sell the Leedsville school at the low rate of $1.00 to build a borough hall was the winning choice of the voters. The Sea View school building became a private residence.

Another sidebar to school board elections was that women were allowed to vote on the questions or resolutions but they were not allowed to vote for the candidates. The directions for the board election of 1909 makes that clear. "NOTE: . . .Women may vote for everything except for the election of members for the Board of Education." The notice for the election of 1924 on page 3 complies with changes required by the adoption of the 19th amendment to the US Constitution. In 1924 Amelia Corson became the first female board member.

James Farish was clerk for both the school board and the borough council beginning in 1889. The positions seemed to have been completely separate from one another but his procedures were carried out in the same precise manner for both. His extensive records in our museum collection are copies of the city records he managed. The note shown here is a sample of how meticulous he was. He sent himself the same notice for scheduled meetings that went out to each board member.

The year 1931 was a rather tumultuous one for Linwood. That was the year an act of the NJ State Legislature required all boroughs in the state to become incorporated as cities. There was a bit of confusion throughout town about becoming a city and quite a bit of opposition to the change.

This is a topic for another

In March 1931 Mr. Farish ran for and was elected as a member of the school board. He submitted his resignation as clerk for the board effective at the end of the school year and continued his position as City Clerk. In 1932, after 42 years of service in these dual positions, Farish retired at the age of 82. His application for a pension from the City of Linwood was approved but only for the two years he served as Linwood's City Clerk. City Council ruled it was not responsible for the 40 years he served as the clerk for the borough. Documents found in court records show his lawsuit requiring Linwood City to pay the earlier 40 years of service was denied. Mr Farish died two years later in 1934.

Records at city hall show that the Board of School Estimates was in operation in December 1931. According to documents gathered during Belhaven School's 100th anniversary, a school board of 5 members was appointed in February 1935. This must have been the first appointed board. There could have been a mix of members appointed and elected in the years between 1931 and 1935. Hopefully, we'll be able to find records that clear this

Linwood Manor: Ranchers Galore!

William Bloom's brochure pictured in the Photogravure sent us on a trip back to the days when thousands of families were moving to the area for the jobs at NAFEC and Prudential. Today the homes on Central Avenue and the streets between Central and Haines Avenue are a combination of styles beyond those popular ranchers of the 1960s and 70s. Many have been upgraded or enlarged but there are still a lot of the originals that represent that period of big changes.

This growth was one of three significant building periods in Linwood's history The first was after World War I when population tripled between 1920 and 1930 as shown in census records. The third housing boom happened when the casinos came to Atlantic City in the 70s. Over the years the value of the homes reached a level unimagined in the famous 60s & 70s era shown in this ad.

From the editor:

I apologize for the fact that this year was the second one that I haven't been able to produce quarterly Historical Society newsletters. The past two years have been a bit rough but I'm hoping to get back to the quarterly issues in the coming year.
